CLASSP and Advanced CLASSP Programs

The Consortia for Learning and Service to Special Populations (CLASSP) is a program developed to support high school students who are interested in serving individuals with disabilities. Students are paid a stipend to work in JCC in-person all-abilities programs, attend virtual classes, and participate in a Youth Workers conference with other metro area teens. Advanced CLASSP is a program designed for young professionals to develop job skills and gain experience working with neurodivergent individuals. The advanced program consists of 30 hours of college-level instruction and 300 hours of supervised field experience. Students learn techniques to best support neurodivergent children and youth, have access to a professional learning community, and receive a stipend for successful completion of the program. Up to 3 college credits are possible at the discretion of each student's higher education institution.

Please contact Kimberly Greenfield, Director of Disability and Inclusion Services, at kgreenfield@friedbergjcc.org for more information and to register.

TADP Child Care Class

The Teacher's Assistant Development Program (TADP) class will teach skills for supporting young children in a variety of settings. Learn about child development, child supervision, health and safety of children, and age-appropriate activities. Gain job readiness and self-advocacy skills in the workplace. Upon class completion, students who would like to learn more can apply for further training and internships within the Friedberg JCC's early childhood and school age after school programs.

SPEAC invites all singers, dancers, poets, artists, joke tellers and other performers to join us on Zoom for a night of music, laughter, and connection.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

VOLUNTEER SERVICES PROGRAM

Discover meaningful ways to use your skills, passions, and leadership to support the JCC and its partner agencies in the community. Volunteers take on roles as leaders, mentors, and active participants in regular community-building events. Join our volunteer network to stay updated on opportunities through the weekly volunteer job board and sign up for impactful projects.
